But you will get more mileage from our favorites. They will steer you around traffic jams, help you manage anxiety, and point you towards a great hiking trail. All are free. SEE OUR SLIDE Show: The Best Cars for Long Road Trips for roads. With painful gas prices high, finding cheap filling and avoiding traffic snarls will keep your wallet and passengers happy. Tell GasBuddy (Android, BlackBerry, iPhone and Windows Phone; it also works on iPads, like most Apple apps) of your location and it will display the lowest fuel prices nearby. The system depends on user updates. If you own an electric car, download CarStations (Android, iPhone) to find a recharge station. At the last report, the app lists more than 4,000 locations. The GPS app is a dozen dim, and you may already have a device built into your car. But for additional navigation muscle, see Triptik AAA (Android, iPhone), which increases your direction by inserting AAA-approved restaurants, repair stores and camping sites, plus prices and gas instructions to more than 2,000 charging stations. Waze (Android, iPhone, select BlackBerry, Nokia and Windows phones) records the location of its users, their speed and other information to create maps that are constantly updated with traffic jams, speed traps and construction delays. Rising and bite. When you tire of hot dog station gas and billboard views, the app provides some relief. Stretch the narrow legs on a hiking trail loaned with the Sierra Club Trail Explorer (iPhone). The app is powered by AllTrails.com using GPS to alert you to the nearest route. Tell Goby (Android, iPad, iPhone) what you want—food, hiking, family fun—and it lists nearby options. Type any town, city or region in the United States and Goby giving you options locally or nearby. It can sort options by distance, date or price, or through a fun feed, a list tailored to your interests (entered manually or by syncing with Facebook). Triplt (Android, BlackBerry, iPhone, iPad, Windows Phone) lets you create itineriers that you can share with others and sync them with your phone's calendar. To add your itinerary, simply forward a confirmation email for hotels, restaurants and entertainment to the app. Sleep cheap. Book a direct last-minute stay through this app get generous discounts. The Priceline Consultant app (Android, iPad, iPhone) includes the Functionality of Your Own Price Name for savings of up to 60%. Skip to headerSkip to the main contentSkip to the footerMy family recently took a way out of the West, and we relied heavily on technology to help us get where we went, finding restaurants and attractions once we were there and booking last-minute stays when our Grand Canyon camping plans were eliminated by very high winds. Some mobile apps are very helpful during our two-week trip. Here are ten free ones you should consider downloading if you plan on hitting the road for the Fourth of July weekend: Google Maps provides a step-by-step direction, satellite views and roads, and tracks you as you drive along your route so you can see how close you are to your destination. If you have Android, you can download Google Maps Navigation, which speaks directions to you so you don't have to watch your phone as your drive. GasBuddy helps you find the cheapest gas price nearby (Android, iPhone, Windows Phone). AAA TripTik Mobile provides gas, map and direction prices, as well as AAA-approved hotels, campsites, restaurants, attractions and automated repair shops (Android and iPhone). TripAdvisor has hotel reviews and photos (as well as restaurants and attractions) so you don't end up with a spot sketch. Gadgets Near Me Now help you find options near you or specific addresses (Android, iPhone, Nokia, Palm, Windows). Priceline Hotel Negotiator works like a Priceline.com, which allows you to bid for hotel rooms and scores Accommodation. The benefit of the app is that it allows you to view winning deals for accommodation near you (iPhone). Yelp is great for finding restaurants, shops, attractions and more because it provides reviews, star ratings and directions to help you get to where you want to go. For restaurants, you can filter your search by food type and price or simply click nearby to see which establishment is closest (Android, BlackBerry, iPhone). Gowalla is a social networking app that allows you to check in in restaurants, stores and more and share suggestions. In addition to user-generated suggestions, Gowalla includes travel guides created by National Geographic, USA Today and other publications (Android, BlackBerry, iPhone and Palm). Goby helps you find free events and activities near you (Android, iPhone). The free Wi-Fi seller shows you where the hotspot is so you don't have to pay to connect to the Internet (if you want to get on your computer and browse the Web instead of seeing your phone's small screen). Pandora Radio allows you to create your own stations to play the music you like so you don't get stuck listening to limited options on your car radio or the same CD again and again (Android, BlackBerry, iPhone, Palm). Bonus: Don't forget to download the game to make sure the kids are occupied. There are plenty of free and a few that are a few dollars (and worth a small price).
